POULTRY SHOW OPENS

GLENDALE AND DISTRICT MAKE FINE DISPLAY WITH EVERY COOP FULL

Heralded by a combined chorus of subdued murmurs from hens and pullets, loud challenges from one rooster to another, the soft cooing of pigeons, the staccato accompaniment of ducks and the sarcastic comments of a few cynical parrots, as well as the profound silence of a number of wise looking rabbits, the Glendale-Tropico Poultry and Pet Stock Association's show opened its creditable exhibition. The show runs Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Dr. G. Irwin Royce, president of the association, was in constant evidence, flitting about everywhere and frequently casting proud glances in the direction of the pens where his fine specimens of "Bluettes" and "Ravens" exhibited the peculiarities of their breeding. These birds are in a special class by themselves. The doctor has also bantam bluettes of which he is justly proud.

Harold Walthew, animal painter and judge of special varieties and bantams, was handling the various exhibits in the classes over which he is judge, with scrupulous care and expert knowledge. He was deep in the mystery of "rose combs" and other kinds of combs all morning.

Though the show was not formally opened until 1 p. m. a large number of exhibitors were in the rooms of the Hotel Gray block where the show is being held. R. E. Moore judge of the pigeons and rabbits, could be seen examining the wonderful specimens of all kinds that were included in his class. Whether in Carneau or Homers, black, white, brown, red, splashes or blues Mr. Moore is an expert and his judgments are usually acquiesced in by the exhibitors. Glendale has some excellent pigeon breeders and those who witness this show will confess that this section like all the others is worth seeing.

Walter M. Ross of the Red Wing Ranch, secretary of the association, was as busy as the president, answering a thousand different questions and attending to as many wants. "The show is going to be a great success," said Mr. Ross. "It opens, as you see with every coop full, every entry on the ground and in some cases we have had to double up in the coops. This is not what you would call a large show but it is select. Glendale's breeders, whether in pigeons, poultry or rabbits are experts and have quite a reputation throughout the state and some of them as far east as New York. All our judges are experts and have judged at shows for many years.

The officials were waiting anxiously for the arrival of J. L. Harrison of Pasadena, the leading "red" man of the coast. He is the individual who makes and unmake the reputations of the Rhode Island Reds. There is a fine selection of "reds" in the show.

E. E. Emerson of Burbank is the expert on Wyandottes and White Rocks. Glendale is famous for both of these breeds.

J. C. Williams, the great Brown Leghorn expert, will judge in that class. Mr. Brown recently was judge in that class at the great national show.

John D. Mercer is the Cornish expert. These falcon-looking birds, with their square shoulders and cleanliness of limb attract much attention.

Barred Rocks and other Plymouth varieties are under the judgment of Fred Espe, one of Glendale's experts and breeders. Mr. A. A. Goodacre of Compton judges the Orpingtons, one of the most important classes in the show. There are some fine-looking specimens of Orpingtons from the Whitton ranch and one nice-looking pen from the Fromm ranch. Black Minorcas are submitted to the judgment of Mr. J. V. McConnell.

On the cat side, Mrs. W. M. Ross was busy. She has several fine entries. Miss Marjorie Imler of Tropico has others. Miss Hickman of Tropico was on hand in this and other sections, taking special interest in the Tropico exhibits. The cat expert is Mrs. J. L. Finan of Los Angeles. She has judged cats for years. "Cats," she said, "should not be kept more than two days in the show. They are easily frightened and get nervous among crowds. Many of them are sick for days after a show."

In the front windows of the show rooms are fine exhibits of wild mallard ducks, golden pheasants and ring-neck Chinese pheasants. The Valley Supply company has a fine exhibit of poultry foods.

Mrs. J. C. Waite of 707 South Central avenue has as a house guest Miss Annie Granger of Boston, Mass.

SAW CLOSE OF FAIR

LESTER L. MEYERS GETS TO SAN FRANCISCO IN TIME TO VIEW
EXPOSITION WONDERS

"I ran up to San Francisco last week," said Lester L. Meyers, of the Overland Sales Agency, to a representative of The Glendale Evening News. "Business and other matters had made it an impossibility for me to get up there before; so at the last moment I made my way north and was just in time to see the spectacular closing of the great fair."

"So many people from Glendale have seen the fair that it would be superfluous for me to attempt to make any description of the wonderful exposition that has passed away into the limbo of things that are gone; but I am sure that the memory of its wonders will never fade in the minds of those who have been privileged to see it."

"To have been in the Exposition grounds on closing day and night and to have witnessed the gathering and movement of the mighty throng of 450,000 people, who, like some huge living creature, wind and twisted in and out through the spacious halls and corridors and courts of the fair, was an experience in itself. I had never been one of so big a crowd as that before. It was almost oppressive."

"At night, when, to signalize the closing hours, all the lights of the Exposition were put out and simultaneously 200 mortars threw a mighty salvo of bombs into the air, the scene was indescribably impressive. The noise of the mortars might easily have persuaded one that a battle royal was taking place. The heavens were bright with countless myriads of sparks. The illuminating set pieces and the countless colored fires and other pyrotechnic displays were amazingly striking."

"I am glad I saw the Exposition. I am also glad to learn that many of the best features of the fair are to be taken to San Diego, where for another year they will delight the visitors to Southern California."

"In particular I think every one will be delighted to see again or if not again for the first time, the wonderful Canadian exhibit. That marvelous collection of all the national wonders and products of Canada will be housed, I understand, in one of the largest buildings in the San Diego grounds. Those who wish to see what trained intelligence and long experience can effect in getting up such a presentation of a country should not fail to go to San Diego. For school children, the order, the grouping, the classification of the natural products of Canada and the artistic taste with which the whole has been arranged should be a valuable lesson."

"I hope to see many of the objects that were at San Francisco at San Diego next year, when I shall have time to examine and study them more closely. In every way I am pleased at what I saw in the northern city and especially with the automobile exhibits."

Cunningham will illustrate the lecture, and an added pleasure will be musical numbers by Mr. Cecil Crandall, violinist, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Lee.

LEARN MANUAL ARTS

MISS MABEL THAYER TELLS OF
EQUIPMENT AND PROGRESS IN THE SCHOOLS OF GLENDALE

Miss Mabel Thayer, superintendent of Manual Arts in the Grammar schools of Glendale, has written the following article to The Glendale Evening News to inform the public of the progress that is being made along the line of Manual Arts in the Glendale Grammar schools:

Better equipment and marked progress characterize the development of Manual Arts in the Glendale Grammar schools.

During last summer a new open-air shop was equipped at Columbus avenue school for the use of the three schools on the west side of town. At present it takes care of the activities of about sixty boys in the fifth and sixth grades. These boys, besides following a regular course of models, have added to the equipment of their respective schools various articles of wood for use both in the schoolrooms and halls, and in the grounds for agricultural purposes.

At the Intermediate school a mechanical drawing room and office has been added to the shop floor space. Many new tools, as well as drawing benches and boards, have been added since last year. These additions have proved a source of added interest to the 230 boys who use this larger shop.

Miss Thayer, the supervisor, has given special attention to the enrichment of the course in the 5th and 6th grades by the addition of new models and also regular classes in Shop Drawing under the able direction of Miss Blackburn of the Art department. Every effort is being made to make the means at hand of the greatest possible benefit to every boy. In many cases individual adjustments are made in order that deficiency or lack of opportunity in the regular subjects need not rob a boy of the chance to "make good" in the realm where skill rather than scholarship is at a premium.

The Intermediate boys have regular mechanical drawing lessons with Miss Jones, the drawing supervisor, as well as making occasional shop drawings during shop hours. Many of the boys show a marked ability to make plans of their own, both for pieces of furniture and for wireless and other shop projects. Several new ideas suggested by the exhibits at San Francisco are being worked out in our shop.

In the 8th year elementary carpentry consumes about one-third of the allotted time. Under the efficient direction of Mr. Clark the boys have erected a lath house for use in the agriculture classes, two bicycle shelters with racks, two speed signs with lettering, a tennis court and other athletic equipment. In the cabinet shop hardly a week passes which does not find one or more groups of boys engaged upon school projects.

Those in charge of the work hope to bring it into closer relation to the High School course within the next few weeks. In this relation a detailed study of woods most used in this part of the state, is being made in the 7th and 8th grades. It is the plan to take up one wood each quarter, thus giving a drill in eight woods during the two years. The papers on these subjects are illustrated by drawings, specimens of wood, or selected pictures. Tools and materials are also to be the subjects for study.

All classes in Manual Training are open to the public. We invite inspection at any time. Strangers as well as patrons of the school are welcome. Helpful suggestions are solicited.

BOND ELECTION POSTPONED

On account of an irregularity in the description of one of the voting precincts, in ordinance No. 279, calling a bond election for December 20, 1915, the time of holding such election has been postponed to a date that will likely be fixed by the City trustees at the next regular meeting of the Board.

OFF TO SILVER MINE

T. A. ROSENBERGER LEAVES FOR VALUABLE PROPERTY NEAR THE DEATH VALLEY

Far out on the Mojave desert, seven miles beyond where the vast ancient, dried up sea, now known as Searles lake, shows white and sparkling on the way to the Valley of Death, lies a wonderful mine. It is owned by T. A. Rosenberger, of 147 S. Brand boulevard. Out of this mine it is likely that many million dollars will be taken before long.

"I did not go out," said Mr. Rosenberger to a representative of The Glendale Evening News, "and endure hardships untold in order to obtain this rich property. I was called on to suffer no agonies of thirst or starvation in search of it. I was sitting in my Los Angeles office, a few months ago, when a promoter called on me and put this proposition before me on behalf of a prospector who had discovered the mine. After considering the matter I went out to the remote and desolate region where the mine is situated and made a thorough examination and tests."

"I was not long in convincing myself that this silver property was all it had been represented to be. The ore is a lead-sulphide, in contact with lime and diorite. It has been thoroughly assayed from various parts of the vein and has tested all over with an average of $1000 a ton."

"Associated with me in working this silver mine is Mr. Thomas Thorildsen, who is known all over California as the "Borax King." Mr. Thorildsen is not only a man of wealth but he is also one of the most genial and trustworthy partners one could have. His name alone is a guaranty of the value of the mine."

"This mine is situated about seven miles from Trona, the potash town of Searles lake. It will be remembered that there was a dispute of considerable intensity regarding the ownership of this lake, which is of immense value commercially, and likely to be more so as the potash which it contains is turned out in commercial quantities. The company that is working the lake and its potash deposits has built a camp of some size for its employees and other buildings have sprung up there too. Water has been developed and the situation is considerably altered for the better since the time when people used to lose their lives trying to cross the lake."

"Our mine is seven miles from Trona. It looks out toward the Death Valley. The forbidding peaks of the Tombstone mountains can be seen from our camp keeping watch over that formidable region. We get water from the Searles Lake company at Trona. It is good water, which is quite a consideration on the desert, where so much of the water is impregnated either with soda or with arsenic."

"I anticipate a good time at the mine. The climate is healthy and dry. We ship our ore to San Francisco for treatment. The vein outcrops on the surface and shows quite rich there. I am sinking two shafts, which I will put down 200 feet at first. We expect that we will make some money at this business."

"My house in Glendale I am leaving in the care of Mr. Ed. Wolbach of Munson's store. I expect that after a while we will be back again in Glendale, which will always be our headquarters."

ENTERTAIN OLD FRIEND

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Brown of 913 San Rafael were made happy recently by a visit from a friend and neighbor of years gone by. Great was their surprise and delight when Mr. C. Geisenheimer, of Seldon, Kansas, whom they had not seen for twenty-six years, appeared at their home. The Browns and Geisenheimers were neighbors in Kansas years ago. The daughters of the two families who were chums are now widely separated. Miss Geisenheimer is in India and Miss Hallie Brown is living on a claim at Beaver Creek, Colorado.

FARMERS MAY TEST SEEDS

The farmers of the Ninth Congressional District in Los Angeles county are to be asked, to the number of about one thousand, to test new and rare field seeds. Congressman Charles H. One pound package of Sudan grass seed, five-pound packages Feterita seed, four-pound packages of Milo seed, and four-pound packages of Peruvian alfalfa seed. In writing, name first and second choice of seeds, as only a limited number can be furnished of one variety especially.

PRESIDENT WILSON ON INTIMIDATION

One of the most notable features of President Wilson's address to the joint session of the two houses of congress referred to the threat against the national peace and safety uttered within the borders of the United States. Citizens of the United States who have come to this country as a refuge from foreign conditions and who, when first setting foot on these shores, were exceedingly glad to find shelter, food and work here, have taken advantage of the generous liberality with which they have been treated to try to make this land of liberty a hotbed of intrigue.

President Wilson was not speaking so much of the foreigner, who under the guise of attache to an embassy or under the protection of any diplomatic function plotted and planned against the peace and safety of the republic and its citizens. He was speaking of the men who, having been admitted to the vast privilege of American citizenship, under the generous naturalization laws of the United States, have "poured the poison of disloyalty into the very arteries of our national life; who have sought to bring the authority and good name of our government into contempt, to destroy our industries wherever they thought it effective for their vindictive purposes to strike at them, and to debase our politics to the uses of foreign intrigue."

Imagine some of those "hyphenated Americans" who, doubtless, were sitting at that moment in the halls of congress hearing themselves stigmatized in that manner! It is well known that some German-American congressmen and it is whispered, even one senator, have been involved in those very plottings of which the president speaks so plainly and with so much vigor of denunciation.

It is really almost inconceivable that men sworn into the citizenship of this country, men who had experienced the worth and the truth of the republic, should turn in malign reaction against the Government and the people who had welcomed and nurtured them, and should seek to make this proud country once more a hotbed of European passion.

Unfortunately, as President Wilson pointed out, this country is without laws to deal with this species of treason. He very wisely urged congress to enact laws at the earliest possible moment in order to save the honor and self-respect of the nation. It is necessary to crush out such creatures of passion, disloyalty and anarchy.

Limping up the coast in a desperate endeavor to gain some port of refuge is one of America's finest liners, the Minnesota, victim of one of the plots of destruction hatched by some of the fine gentlemen diplomats and their hyphenated henchmen. In New York countless plots of a similar nature have been attempted to be carried out. Munitions factories have been blown up or attempts to blow them up have been made. These plots against property and the Government should be dealt with effectually. That the president asked of congress and it is certain that both houses and the whole country with the exception of the plotters themselves will back him up in his righteous indignation and his desire for power to deal with the traitors.

TEACHING BY MOVING PICTURES

Whatever abuses may have grown up in connection with the moving picture business the picture system can be put to great use. Among the most interesting of moving pictures are those that deal with real life. One theater in Los Angeles devoted itself entirely to pictures of travel and became, as it were, a center of visual education. It is doubtful if the experiment was entirely a success for it was observable that the travel pictures were latterly interspersed with pictures of another kind. While a show consisting entirely of travel pictures every day might easily become a surfeit, there is no doubt that the intelligent public takes a great pleasure in viewing such pictures.

Pictures showing the wonders of the animal and of the plant world have always been popular, even in moving picture shows of the lightest kind. The movements and habits of birds, bees, reptiles and wild animals generally have a vast attraction for children, both of a young and of an older growth.

Now it is proposed to teach geography by means of moving pictures. It should be possible to take a class through a country by this means and make the general appearance of a land, of its people, its cities, its fashions in clothing, in public life, in the mountains or by the seashore as familiar to the pupil as are the streets of Glendale, for instance.

There could be no easier manner in which to familiarize the youthful mind with the ways and manners of a foreign nation than by the moving picture. The pupil might enter the big liner at New York harbor, move down the river, see the sights of the Atlantic, such as they are; the daily life of the traveler on the liner; the arrival at Hamburg, Germany; Havre, France; Liverpool, England, or Glasgow, Scotland. He might steam straight for the Mediterranean, pass Gibraltar or even land there and ascend the Nix Mangiare stairs and penetrate as far as allowed into the recesses of the mighty fortress. He might travel down the Mediterranean, skirting Spain and France; might enter Marseilles; run up to Paris; back again and on to Italy and the isles of Greece and up the straits to Constantinople; back to the Mediterranean; through the Suez canal and on to Egypt and the mighty past; and so on indefinitely.

The instruction and pleasure to be obtained in this manner, along with the ordinary geography lesson, would be enormous. Already such courses are being given in the east and are doing much good. They enlarge the student's conception of foreign countries and let him see how his own country and others compare.

This substitute for travel cannot fail to be valuable and enlightening. It is the same in other subjects. Astronomy can thus be taught in a most striking manner; physiology and anatomy; the wonders of the X-ray can show the human body alive and performing its functions in a most instructive manner. Botany, natural history and all departments of science in like manner can be made to yield practical demonstration of their particulars. There is a vast realm of possibility in all this that ought to be encouraged in the schools.

BEAUTIFUL PICTURES

Have you seen those beautiful pictures in the "Life of Our Lord," shown these Sunday nights in the Seventh Day Adventist Church, in the evening service of the Lutheran congregation that worships there. They are beautiful works of art in themselves by the celebrated artist, William Hole, of London. And the sermons they preach, the good they do, are well worth seeing and hearing. The subject illustrated next Sunday night will be "His Matchless Service." The public is most cordially invited to attend these services. Come parents, and bring your children. It is the best place for them.

LACK OF GYNASIUM

DR. FAY G. STONE SAYS GLENDAL E ATHLETES ARE EXILED TO LOS ANGELES

It would appear that Glendale has no place for her young men who want to keep up their athletics and to sustain the high name the city has acquired in that field. Some few days ago The Glendale News published an interview with Dr. Fay G. Stone, in which he told of the efforts that were being made to obtain for the basketball and athletic teams of the city some kind of a hall where they might practice. The matter was pushed vigorously for a time but was afterward dropped as it received no adequate encouragement.

"We have been unable to get any encouragement from the city in the way of providing a place for the basketball team. The city is willing enough to do something but finances are the obstacle. What we want is a permanent and comfortable home, with a large hall for practice, comfortable dressing rooms, shower baths, etc. The cost would not be very great; but it seems impossible at present to find the funds to finance such an undertaking, said Dr. Stone.

"This is a great pity, for it is driving the team out of the city and forcing it to make other affiliations than those of its own home. We must either break up the teams which have already done much to carry the name of Glendale over the state or we must exile ourselves to Los Angeles and to a certain extent commercialize ourselves, which is not always the best thing for an independent and self-respecting team.

"However, our very existence depends on our keeping together and as we cannot do it in Glendale we must go elsewhere. There is always a certain amount of expense in connection with the running of a team and the item of traveling expense is not insignificant. These expenses must be met and the only way to meet them is to enter into some arrangement with parties who have an eye to their own advantage, our of connection with an athletic or basketball team.

"It is probable that we will make arrangements to represent in some way the Dyas firm of Los Angeles, sporting goods dealers. We will have to go to Los Angeles to get our practice. That means practical exile. Glendale has been getting some good advertising from the successes of its basketball team and other athletic teams and individuals. Such advertising has been the making of some towns in the United States. It seems a pity that the city should not be able to retain its own athletes in its midst, as other cities do.

"It seems to me that it might not be out of place for the Chamber of Commerce to take this matter up. That is an influential body and if it should lend its aid to some plan or devise some plan for providing suitable quarters for the teams they might be retained here."

WHITE CHRISTMAS

A beautiful Christmas program, under the direction of Mesdames E. H. Williford, C. B. Guthrie and Eva L. Cunningham, has been arranged to be given at the First Congregational Church on the Sunday preceding Christmas, December 19.

"White Gifts for the King" is the plan suggested.

Children of the Sunday School will bring gifts of toys, which are to be distributed among the Chinese children of Los Angeles by the First Congregational Mission Board.

The Philanthropic sewing circle have made and will give infant layettes to the needful, all other gifts being arranged for later.

A special request has been made that all packages be wrapped in white, and how pretty these will look upon the platform so beautifully done in white and Christmas greens, the decorations chosen by that committee composed of Mesdames C. M. Van Dyke, W. D. McRae and Miss Rose Mary Button. A most pleasing program number will be the two stories told by a "story teller" from the Los Angeles public library and another feature to be the Christmas carols sung by the entire congregation. All are invited to attend this particular and beautiful service.

JUDGE WHOMES, 77 YEARS OF AGE, JUMPS AT PROPOSAL FOR ASCENSION CHRISTMAS

It is something to be 77 years of age and to feel still young. Something to have put in those long years in diligence and honorable pursuit of one's own welfare and that of all around one, and yet to feel, like Moses at 120 that the eye is not dim nor the natural strength abated. Judge Whomes has attained the age of 77 and yet feels fit for a competitive ascent of Mt. Lowe on Christmas Day.

"It was while perusing the newspapers," said the judge to a representative of The Glendale Evening News, "that my eye fell on an item with the date line of Pasadena, telling how George M. Bennett of 952 North Lake avenue of that city, whose 75th birthday falls on Christmas day, had been looking for another man of his own age to accompany him on a walk up Mt. Wilson on that anniversary.

"It did not seem to me so very great a feat for a man of 75. I, myself, have ascended Mt. Lowe on foot several times quite recently. I am 77 years of age and yet have never felt it a burden to make the ascent, and offered to accompany him and his friend, one Nathan Pinson, also 75 years of age. Pinson made the trip, I believe, only a few days ago, so that he is quite sure that he can do it. Bennett has never made it but thinks it will be easy.

"I wrote to Mr. Bennett as follows: 'Dear Sir: I have just observed that you are anxious to have a companion in your proposed walk up Mt. Lowe on Christmas day. You are also desirous that your companion or companions should be 75 years of age. I am in my 77th year. I would be pleased to accompany you. I think I have sufficient strength at least to trail behind.'

"As a matter of fact I am fully aware of what is demanded for an ascent of Mt. Lowe. I have measured my strength against the trail and I have always had plenty of reserve force when the summit was reached. The last time I went up the mountain I led the way up with the party and also the way down.

"In England, where I was born, the people are great pedestrians. I have been an American for 51 years, but I have never lost the habit of walking. I walk regularly to and from my work every day, which makes a distance of six miles. I was born in Chislehurst, not far from London. There we were accustomed to have constant walking matches and prided ourselves on walking long distances. I kept up the practice in Keewaupee, Ill., where I spent 10 years; also in Terrill, Texas, where I spent another 10 years. The rest of the time I have lived on the Pacific coast in Los Angeles, in the coast towns and 8 years in Glendale, but wherever I have been my custom of taking long walks has never been forsaken.

"I have not the slightest doubt that I will have much pleasure in accompanying my two younger brethren on the upward journey to Mt. Lowe. I have no fear that any of us will fall by the wayside. It is a glorious trip and in such weather as this is doubly enjoyable."

EAGLE ROCK

The many friends of the Howard family on South Central avenue were grieved when the news of Mrs. Howard's death reached them. Mrs. Katherine Howard died at her home last Monday morning after a lingering illness of several years. She was 50 years old and had been a resident of Eagle Rock for more than ten years. The funeral was held at the house with Dr. Creswell officiating and interment was at Forest Lawn cemetery.

The Parent-Teacher association met last Wednesday afternoon at the school building and Miss Lenora Johnstone, Eagle Rock's well known music teacher, addressed the ladies on "A Musical Education for the Child" and had a few of her pupils with her to illustrate her method of teaching music. A number of friends attended this unusually interesting affair and were benefitted by it. Tea and cake were served by the hostess for the occasion, Mrs. Herseman.

Miss Ellen Parker, a student of Occidental college, has been appointed superintendent of the Junior Epworth league of the Eagle Rock M. E. church.

Rev. Kirkes and family expect to leave soon for their new home in Texas where he has received a call from a Presbyterian church.

A. A. House put in walks and curbing the past week for Mr. Sears of Hill avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Moll, who have long resided on North Highland avenue, moved to Los Angeles the past week. It is hoped they will return to this city again.

Miss Rachael Graves of U. S. C., Mr. R. Richardson of Highland Park and Mr. Beerman of Los Angeles were among those from abroad who were in Eagle Rock Tuesday evening to take part in "Ye Olde Tyme" concert.

The rain last Friday night and Saturday morning did considerable damage, filling the gutters with rubbish and thus forcing the water to flow over the curbs and walks. At Ridgeway and Valley drive the culverts were badly washed out. Hillside scenic drive near the college and a newly opened tract suffered the most from the heavy downpour. The drive which encircles the hill was recently completed, but now it will require considerable grading to make the road again. Much of the walk along the place is nearly covered with gravel from the slide.

The Christmas bazaar given last Thursday and Friday at the club house by the Twentieth Century club was a grand success in spite of the rain and the ladies netted a neat sum for their efforts put forth to make this a most brilliant affair.

Everything is going on as usual now that the excitement of annexation has subsided and most everyone feels satisfied with the results.

The next Twentieth Century club meeting takes place this week Thursday, Dec. 9, and a speaker will be present to address the ladies. It will be an all-day meeting.

CALIFORNIA CITIES ARE GROWING SWIFTLY

California has twenty-three cities each with population in excess of 10,000. It has twenty-two cities ranging in population from 5000 to 10,000. It has but two cities that approximate 50,000 population each, and but one city in the quarter-million population class. There are six cities having population between 25,000 and 50,000; three ranging from 50,000 to 100,000; and eleven between 10,000 and 20,000. This manifestly is a healthful distribution of population. We are not extremists either way. We do not have overgrown cities. Nor do we have runt cities and overpopulated rural communities.

According to latest estimates, Los Angeles claims to be the metropolis of the state, with 500,000 as its claim, while San Francisco is credited with 485,000. These two cities and Oakland, with its 210,000, are the only ones in the state exceeding 100,000 population. Two of them lie in the northern half of the state and one in the southern. San Diego leads the class of cities having between 50,000 and 100,000. The estimate made for it is 90,000; Sacramento follows with 76,000 and Berkeley with 52,000. Of this class of cities, two are in the north and one in the south.
